I am a ceramicist and illustrator working from my studio in the English countryside. I make matt bespoke porcelain buttons created entirely by hand. My practice is rooted in creating beautiful and functional objects with great attention to detail.

Buttons are available as plain colours, striped with combinations of clay colours, or marbled with two clay colours.

Buttons are available with stripes - either set with a single line of colour, or alternating two different colours. Clay can also be marbled together to create very intricate patterns. Each of these marbled buttons has it's own unique design.

This an extremely low waste process. Any left-over mixes of coloured clays are used to make new marbled buttons, wedged together to experiment with new colours or the coloured clays are separated, dried and then slaked to become fresh clay.
